CEO, Tucson Museum of Art

Jeremy Mikolajczak is the Chief Executive Officer of the Tucson Museum of Art and Historic Block. Since joining the museum in March of 2016, Mikolajczak has led transformational change at TMA, including the launch of TMA/100: A vision for the 21st century, a strategic and capital campaign that reflects the vision for TMA to serve as a leading 21st-century regional museum. With Phase I of the campaign complete, Mikolajczak is focusing his attention on building sustainable investment in the museum and increasing access to exhibitions and educational programs that promote the core of the museum's vision of connecting art to life.

Prior to TMA, Mikolajczak served as the Executive Director and Chief Curator of Miami Dade College's Museum and Galleries of Art + Design in Miami, Florida. Mikolajczak oversaw the college's network of six campus galleries and international sculpture park, and led the transformation of the institution, founding the Museum of Art + Design, and Cuban Exile Experience, located in the Freedom Tower (listed on the National Register of Historic Places) in downtown Miami. He engaged a broad range of audiences, drawing 100,000 visitors annually through exhibitions and programs that included art, design, and local history and culture. During his tenure, he raised the profile of the college's visual arts programs to local, national, and international exposure.

Mikolajczak's experience includes working with major private, corporate, and museum art collections, as well as regional, national, and international artists. He has curated and organized multiple solo and group exhibitions, and frequently publishes articles on arts and culture.
