

Randi Dorman

Board member, Past President
MOCA Tucson

Randi arrived in Tucson in 2001 and she has been going full speed ever since.

After a successful career in advertising and global branding in NY, Randi shifted her focus to real estate development with the development of the Ice House Lofts in Downtown Tucson. She and her husband, architect Rob Paulus, formed a real estate development company called R+R Develop.

Randi is passionate about downtown Tucson and arts and culture in the community here. She was President of the Museum of Contemporary Art Tucson for over 5 years and created a weekly email called "Randi's Picks" that highlighted events in Tucson with a focus on the arts and downtown, and is currently Chairwoman of the Downtown Tucson Partnership.

"You never know where life is going to take you, and if you are open to the possibilities, the journey can surprise you in wonderful ways. That is why I am passionate about showing what is possible in Tucson through our developments, the arts and the revitalization of Downtown Tucson."

Downtown advocate, art philanthropy

I am a native New Yorker who moved to Tucson in 2001. I saw so many opportunities to make interesting things happen here and started right away. I went from Global Branding Exec to Urban Infill Real Estate Developer, Museum President, Downtown and Arts and Culture Advocate, and a person known for making things happen and keeping people informed. There is still so much to do and I appreciate
