Ed Frisch, Secretary

After 40 years of dedicated service to the University of Arizona, Ed Frisch retired from his position as Associate Vice President for Academic Resources, Planning and Management in the Office of the Provost in 2014.

Prior to joining the Office of the Provost in 1987, Ed held financial and administrative positions in Health Sciences at SUNY Buffalo and in the UA College of Agriculture and Life Sciences. In his extensive career as a senior administrator overseeing strategy and budget for the Provost, Ed guided major financial and planning decisions while serving as a mentor for countless managers across our campus. Ed played a vital role in the Finance committee as well as the Space committee, and he served as administrative lead for UA's institutional accreditation as well as the annual strategic planning process.

UA Provost Andrew Comrie commented in a memo announcing Ed's retirement that "Ed understands both the academic and financial dimensions of the institution, and he has consistently applied his wisdom and insights to move us forward. He has brought the highest levels of integrity, professionalism, insight and expertise to everything he has done, always with a seriousness of purpose, a positive attitude and a dry sense of humor that we all appreciate."

Ed and his wife, Bonnie, are both proud graduates of the University of Arizona.

Betsy Bolding, Emerita

Tucson's Woman of the Year in 2003, Betsy has an impressive record of community involvement, both professionally and as a volunteer. In her current position as director of consumer affairs at Tucson Electric Power, Betsy manages the company's K-8 in-school education programs and provides community outreach for TEP's special programs to benefit low-income customers and for its solar and renewable energy programs.

A high school Journalism and English teacher for 15 years, Betsy turned to politics in 1978, successfully co-chairing Gov. Bruce Babbitt's campaign in southern Arizona. She managed his branch office and handled issues pertinent to the Tucson region, serving as his special assistant during his eight years in office.

With her background in consumer affairs and politics, Betsy is deeply in touch with the Tucson community. More than that--she is a whirlwind of activity and involvement in the arts, education and community service. She is a past president and director of the Community Food Bank, and her involvement with the Arizona Community Action Association, a state-wide group, keeps her in contact with agencies that provide services to low-income families. She is also currently a director of Childs Play, a Tempe-based professional children's theater group, and a past chairman of the Arizona Theater Company and a member of its Honorary Board. She was founding president of the Tucson Cinema Foundation which owns and operates the Loft Cinema. Betsy, who is a trustee of Prescott College, has stayed involved with her alma mater as well. She is a founding member of the UA Women's Studies Advisory Council and serves on the advisory boards of the UA Women's Plaza of Honor and Arizona Public Media.

Hassan Hijazi

As Assistant Vice President of Middle East and North African Affairs for the University of Arizona's UA Global, Hassan works closely with UA colleges and departments, the UA Alumni Association, the UA Foundation, and foreign entities (including companies, universities, and government agencies), to develop a comprehensive UA global alumni and outreach program aimed at promoting international partnerships and development initiatives. Specifically, he is responsible for developing leverage or investment opportunities with individuals, corporations, foundations, and other entities or agencies, as well as pursuing collaborative relationships nationally and internationally to support new and existing programs, institutes, and initiatives.

Before joining Global Initiatives, Hassan held the position of Director of External Affairs for The University of Arizona Biosphere 2. His focus was development of strategic initiatives to advance the missions of Biosphere 2, B2 Earthscience and B2 Institute. In support of this activity he works with businesses, foundations, and community leaders, as well as local, state, and federal government officials.

Before joining Biosphere 2, Hijazi served as Assistant Director of the University of Arizona Office of Federal Relations from 2003-2007. In this capacity he acted as liaison between the University of Arizona and the Federal Government. Prior to this appointment, Hijazi worked as District Aide to Congressman Jim Kolbe for 13 years, dealing with a variety of issues including agriculture, education, science, space, and technology.

Hijazi is an active member of the Tucson community and has served on the following boards: World Care Relief Organization (past President), Voices for Education, UA Presents, Tucson MED Club, Tucson Arizona Boys Chorus (past President). Hassan holds a B.S. in Industrial Engineering and an M.A. in International Relations from the University of Arizona.

John Hildebrand, Emeritus

John G. Hildebrand joined the faculty of the University of Arizona in Tucson in 1985 after serving as a faculty member at Harvard (1970-80) and Columbia (1980-85) Universities. He is Regents Professor of Neuroscience and Professor of Chemistry & Biochemistry, Entomology, and Molecular & Cellular Biology. He earned his baccalaureate degree at Harvard University (1964) and his Ph.D. (in biochemistry, 1969) at the Rockefeller University. He was founding Director of the ARL Division of Neurobiology at the University of Arizona (1985-2009) and subsequently founding Head of the Department of Neuroscience after the Division of Neurobiology became the Department of Neuroscience (2009-13).

Hildebrand and his coworkers study insect nervous systems, with a current focus on the neurobiology of the olfactory system and its roles in behavior as well as related areas of chemical and sensory ecology. This work teaches us about mechanisms that are common to vertebrate and invertebrate nervous systems and at the same time contributes to knowledge that will help alleviate the harm done by insects that are predators of the human food supply or vectors of disease. He is author of more than 220 peer-reviewed research papers and reviews and editor of five books.

Hildebrand is past president of several scientific societies, including the Association for Chemoreception Sciences (AChemS), International Society of Chemical Ecology, and the International Society for Neuroethology, and a frequent consultant to federal agencies, private foundations, and companies. Among his strongest interests is education at all levels, and in that connection he served for many years as chairman of the Board of Neuroscience Schools of the International Brain Research Organization (IBRO) and as a member of the Training Advisory Committee of the APA/ANDP/NIH Diversity Program in Neuroscience. He is a member of the National Academy of Sciences and currently serves as its Foreign Secretary, one of the five elected officers. He also is a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, the American Philosophical Society, and the German National Academy of Sciences 'Leopoldina'; a foreign member of the Norwegian Academy of Science and Letters and the Royal Norwegian Society of Sciences and Letters; an Honorary Fellow of the Royal Entomological Society (UK), and a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the Entomological Society of America, and the International Society for Neuroethology. Among his other honors are an Einstein Professorship in the Chinese Academy of Sciences, the Outstanding Service Award for Contributions to the Biological Sciences from the American Institute of Biological Sciences, the Silver Medal of the International Society of Chemical Ecology, the Founders Memorial Award of the Entomological Society of America, and a Max Planck Research Award and a Humboldt Research Prize from the Alexander von Humboldt Foundation.

In addition to his extensive activities as an academic scientist, Hildebrand serves as a member of the Advisory Board of UAPresents (the performing arts presenting organization of the University of Arizona) and the Community Advisory Board of Arizona Public Media. In 2013 he was elected to membership in the Cosmos Club in Washington DC. For nearly thirty years until 1985, he enjoyed a parallel career as a free-lance professional musician in Boston and New York City. He is included in several versions of Who's Who.

Lynn Nadel, PhD

Dr. Lynn Nadel is the Regents' Professor Emeritus of psychology at the University of Arizona. Nadel specializes in memory and has investigated the role of the hippocampus in memory formation. Together with John O'Keefe, he coauthored the influential 1978 book The Hippocampus as a Cognitive Map, which defended the theory that the hippocampus learns and stores cognitive maps of portions of space. He later advanced the multiple trace theory that the hippocampus is always involved in storage and retrieval of episodic memory, but that semantic memory can be established in the neocortex.

Nadel received a Ph.D. from McGill University in 1967 and joined the faculty of the University of Arizona in 1985, where he currently serves as director of the Cognition and Neural Systems Program. Nadel, together with John O'Keefe, received the 2006 Grawemeyer Award for their work in identifying the brain's mapping system. He was named recipient of a 2019 William James Fellow Award from the Association for Psychological Science for his contributions to cognitive psychology. From 2007 to 2016, Nadel was the founding editor-in-chief of the scientific journal, Wiley Interdisciplinary Reviews: Cognitive Science.

Jack Gibson, Ex-Officio Member

Jack Gibson's career in public media spans forty-five years and demonstrates the ideals of using media as a resource to educate, inform, inspire, and entertain. His leadership of several successful original production projects has earned him eight Emmy® Awards, including the coveted Overall Excellence Award for AZPM in 2015 from the Rocky Mountain Southwest Chapter of the National Association of Television Arts & Sciences.

AZPM, Southern Arizona's editorially independent, nonprofit public media organization, is provided as a community service of the University of Arizona. For nearly 65 years, this media enterprise has captured the imagination of viewers and listeners with a wide variety of high-quality programming from the Public Broadcasting Service (PBS) and National Public Radio (NPR), in addition to its own locally programmed classical and jazz music services and original radio, television, and digital productions, which have consistently been recognized in prestigious award competitions.

Gibson began his media career in 1977 with collegiate radio and his public media career in 1978 at WUFT Channel 5/Gainesville, Florida, based at the University of Florida. He later served as Director of Programming for WLIW Channel 21/Long Island, and then as Senior Vice President for Programming and Production at WPBT Channel 2/Miami. He has served in his present capacity at AZPM since January, 2006.

Gibson has served on numerous industry and community boards and committees, including four terms as Governor for the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences/Suncoast Chapter in Miami, and on the Board of Directors for Arizona Town Hall. He currently serves as the Immediate Past Chair of the University Licensee Association and is a member of public television's Affinity Group Coalition, along with the leaders of PBS, CPB, and NETA. Gibson also serves on the Board of Directors for the Children's Action Alliance based in Phoenix, on the Advisory Board of the Friends of Saguaro National Park in Tucson, and is a member of the Southern Arizona Cultural Leadership Alliance.

Gibson earned a Bachelor of Science Degree in Broadcasting with a minor in Management/Marketing from the University of Florida and is a graduate of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting's Executive Management Institute at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. He is a 2022 Fellow of the Public Media Diversity Leadership Initiative from the Riley Institute at Furman University.

Jack and his wife Laura, a newly retired Canyon View Elementary School kindergarten teacher, reside in the Catalina Foothills. The couple have three adult children.
